To whom it may concern,

As a mechanical engineer and an owner of heating and air conditioning firm, I work closely with consulting engineers on a regular basis. I have found that the most successful projects are the result of a collaborative effort between the installation company and the engineer. Many difficult projects require a practical approach to providing engineered solutions to mechanical challenges while keeping the installation costs within a reasonable budget.

Lois Roberts is an engineer that understands this. She has the unique ability to focus on the owner's needs and orchestrate a team that can achieve the stated goals. These skills are important for new construction projects, but even more important for improving existing HVAC systems that are not performing adequately due to poor designs or poor installations.

I recommend Ms Roberts for any project that requires the close personal involvement of an independent mechanical engineer.

Sincerely,

Bill Valus
